Weydon Multi Academy Trust and Eggar's School are delighted to announce that Eggar's School will join the Trust with effect from the 1st of February 2025.

The school will be joining Weydon, Farnham Heath End, Woolmer Hill, Frogmore College and Rodborough (secondary schools), Crondall and Beacon Hill Primary Schools, along with The Ridgeway, The Abbey, The Park School, Clifton Hill and Brooklands Special Schools and our SCITT (teacher training provider) who all collectively form Weydon Multi Academy Trust.

Eggar's School is an 11-16 school set in an impressive 38-acre site on the edge of Alton. The school has a well-established reputation for academic excellence, sporting prowess and exceptional talent in Music and the Creative Arts.

John Winter, CEO of WMAT said “As highly regarded educational providers we are excited about the increased opportunities that will result from this development, both for staff and students.

Eggar’s School joining us will build capacity and resources for all in the Trust. We are proud of the way in which our schools work together to provide excellent educational opportunities for all, embracing new technologies and building world class sports and creative arts facilities. By coming together, we can create specialists in every element of school life. We have worked closely with Eggar’s School over the last twelve months, and I am thrilled to be welcoming the school community into our thriving family of schools.”

“The leadership and staff at Eggar’s School have created a caring, family environment whilst being committed to the highest aspirations for all the students in their care. The Trust is looking forward to working alongside the leadership of the school to improve even further on these firm foundations to create alignment with WMAT expectations, raising student attainment and aspirations even further”.

Sarah Holman, Headteacher at Eggar’s School said “We are delighted to be joining WMAT as we are excited to collaborate with colleagues in other schools and be part of something bigger than ourselves. We hope we can contribute positively to the ongoing growth and success of the Trust for the benefit of the students in all our schools.
